Minors On Campus: Maintaining Safety & Minimizing Risk

Wednesday, January 29 ~ 1:00-2:00pm (Eastern)

Once the live date has passed, this training will be available on demand.

Overview

"The demand for high-quality academic, enrichment and athletic programs for minors continues to grow. In response, many colleges and universities are expanding the ways in which they serve minors and their communities, through fee-based programs, mentoring and volunteer opportunities and partnerships with K-12 schools. Much of this growth has occurred quickly and organically. As a result, existing policies may focus on important basics such as liability releases, background checks and suspected child abuse and neglect reporting. But these policies may fall short and fail to address the more practical risks regularly facing program staff... Ensuring appropriate and consistent policies and practices will mitigate risk and safeguard program quality and institutional reputation." ~ Husch Blackwell (2017)

This webinar will benefit faculty and staff as we will discuss evidence-based strategies for responding to the particular needs of minors whenever they have occasion to be on campus. Clearly, underage individuals can benefit greatly from participating in the multiple services, activities, and programs available on the modern college campus. At the same time, this population poses unique and significant challenges for those charged with ensuring their safety and security. It is important from both a moral as well as a legal perspective to make sure that any time a minor sets foot on a college campus, their well-being is at the forefront of the institutional priority list.

Minors are on college campuses for a variety of reasons, both temporary (such as attending an athletic event or participating in a summer camp) or on a more permanent capacity, such as attending classes through dual credit programs or being employed through a third-party. It is not unusual for college students who live on campus to invite their underage friends to campus to attend a sports or cultural event – or to hang out in the residence halls. And while these experiences can be developmental for those involved, having minors on campus does pose significant challenges and concerns for administrators, faculty and staff.

Please join your colleagues from across the country for this fast-paced, interactive webinar where we will explore how to make your campus a safe and secure environment for minors, whether they are just visiting for the day or have occasion to be there on a more consistent basis.

Objectives:

- Learn the relevant legal distinctions between 'children' and 'minors'
- Discover how and why minors often have a presence on most college campuses
- Explore safety issues germane to having minors present on campus
- Discuss the inherent 'dangers' of having underage students on campus
- Demonstrate the importance of boundaries when interacting with minors
- Examine appropriate policies and procedures related to allowing minors on campus
- Acquire the knowledge and skills needed to manage the risks associated with having minors on campus
- Develop and implement training programs for educating the campus about the implications of having minors on campus

Who Should Attend?

- 2-year & 4-year institutions
- Academic Affairs/Instruction
- Faculty (full and part-time)
- Student Services/Affairs
- Outreach & Recruitment Staff
- Advising & Counseling
- Student Life
- Any educator interested in safely serving minors on campus

Speaker(s)

Aaron Hughey

"For a variety of reasons, colleges and universities have experienced an influx of minors on their campuses in recent years. And while the opportunities afforded these underage individuals are tremendous, the potential for bad things to happen – either intentionally or unintentionally – has also grown exponentially. It is imperative that administrators, faculty and staff know how to meet the unique needs of these guests as well as how to respond appropriately if something unfortunate does occur."

Dr. Aaron W. Hughey is a Professor in the Department of Counseling and Student Affairs at Western Kentucky University, where he oversees the graduate degree program in Student Affairs in Higher Education. Before joining the faculty in 1991, he spent 10 years in progressive administrative positions, including five years as the Associate Director of University Housing at WKU. He was also head of the department of Counseling and Student Affairs for five years before returning to the faculty full-time in 2008. Dr. Hughey has degrees from the University of Tennessee at Martin, the University of Tennessee at Knoxville, Western Kentucky University, and Northern Illinois University. He has authored (or co-authored) over 50 refereed publications on a wide range of issues including leadership and student development, standardized testing, diversity, and educational administration. He regularly presents at national and international conferences and consults extensively with companies and schools. He also provides training and professional development programs on a variety of topics centered on student success.
